New York, NY 10010

A virus that is highly contagious makes it's way across the world. The disease causes Lock In to all the unlucky victims, who are fully aware and awake but unable to move.

A century later, this virus is known as the Haden syndrome. FBI agents Chris and Vann are assigned to a Haden related murder. As they begin their journey, this mystery case is bigger than anyone could have imagined.

"Plenty of action, great character development, vivid and believable world-building, and a thought-provoking examination of disability culture and politics."
