Reacher just needed a lift to Virginia. When someone finally stops on the side of the road to pick him up hes extremely thankful that the two men and one woman in the car agreed to give him a ride. He quickly realises however that they are lying about everything. Who they are, where they're going. Futher down the road a man lies dead in an old pumping station, clearly stabbed to death by a profesional. When Reachar and the rest of the travelers run into a police roadblock on the highway things get a little complicated.
